The Perfect Fit is a celebration of the work of Lamar University’s advanced graphic design students. This one night event will showcase the work of Lamar University Advanced Graphic Design students, in a professional setting. Students will have the opportunity to discuss their work in a public forum, sit down and talk one-on-one with mentors in the design field, and network with area professionals and potential employers. Sharing graphic design student work with the community fosters a greater awareness of the importance of Graphic Design in our everyday culture.

Perfection is key but is also an ideal reality, however it is something I still try and accomplish with every project I take on. I’m very much a methodical type of person always visualizing in my mind every component of a project before I even lay the foundation physically. Art is everything and everywhere so it is absolutely vital that I make art that is both aesthetically pleasing and one that also stands apart from the majority.

As a photographer I have come to rely on Graphic Design skills to be able to accomplish many tasks my field requires. In this day and age one goes right along with the other. Nothing speaks louder than an aesthetically pleasing work of art.

As a graphic designer, I focus on characteristics such as space, color, and typography. I use my minimalism approach to emphasize the simplicity design. In my perspective, any design or concept should have the simplest and fewest elements in order to achieve the quality of work.

As a graphic designer and an advertiser, I have a strong appreciation of good design and advertising. I can no longer watch a commercials for enjoyment, but I critique it and ask myself if it works and why. I scrutinize my work the same way and want my design to make an impact on the viewer and challenge them to get up and do something.

I believe that effective design has the ability to spread a universal message through pleasing aesthetics and creative conceptual ideas. Through this philosophical approach, I believe I can create influential designs that individuals can have an emotional connection with. Also, as a Graphic Designer, I believe I have the responsibility to produce quality work that is meaningful.

Design has always been a passion of mine starting at a very young age. Being artistic and creative is one of my favorite characteristics about myself. To me, design is an attraction of inspirations that link your art work to you and your imagination. I think that design is important for individuals to express when searching to be a unique.

I believe that design takes time, dedication, and creativity. Designs have to be clever without being over the top, aesthetically appealing without being too much like a hallmark card, and creative enough to catch the eyes of viewers everywhere. Our world is influenced daily by the designs out there, I just want to be to be a designer in it.
